Congratulations! You have decided to build your new home! After shopping the lots for sale, touring open model homes, and picking your favorite Southeast Wisconsin home builder, it is now time to make that dream home a reality.

But wait... before you break ground and pour that foundation, do you know how your builder plans to keep you updated on your home's progress? With busy schedules, it can be hard to stay connected to the day-to-day progress that is being made on your new home, but working with a new home builder who uses web-based software can make all the difference.

Demlang Builders uses a tool that helps you do just that! This simple-to-use software helps connect everyone that is involved in building your new home. From the builder and contractors to you, the homeowner, this software allows everyone a central line of communication regarding this very important project: your new home!

What's more, this system creates transparency for all those involved in building your new home because it focuses on:

- Communication
- Collaboration
- Documentation

These three things create great efficiencies and reduce communication errors.

In real time, you can access photos of progress being made, see today's schedule, and eliminate confusion about your material selections, because all the necessary information is at everyone's fingertips! This can be especially helpful if you are building a home further away from your current house because you can't always be on-site with our team throughout the building process. Say goodbye to looking back through an e-mail inbox with hundreds of emails to determine whether you selected quartz or granite countertops — all this information is readily available through any mobile device and will always be right at your builder's fingertips.

We know that the key to any relationship is communication. This should be no different in the relationship you have with your Wisconsin home builder! Having that transparency with your home building team will give you peace of mind and a great, enjoyable building experience.
